NSALP CHAIRMAN'S EASTER MESSAGE

Confronting the "Big Lie" about National Socialism & Adolf
Hitler and Christianity

Richard Miller, NSALP Chairman

Aryans & Party Comrades:

As we partake in Holy Week, which climaxes this Easter Sunday, I wish to use this Easter Message to address year another Judeo and Marxist Political Correctness Big Lie, that being that National Socialism and National Socialist Germany and especially Adolf Hitler was anti-Christian. I have often wondered why Jews and Marxists even make this argument, they hate Christians and Christianity, but they have learned that self loathing Aryans will believe anything. The great challenge is to get Aryans to think for themselves and to NOT rely on Judeo-Fox News to do so for them and to get them to objectively look at fact vs. lies that have been hammered into their heads by those who do not have their interests at heart.

Lets us first look at Adolf Hitler and Christianity.

Adolf Hitler was and remains to this day a Catholic in good standing.

Adolf Hitler was born and baptized a Roman Catholic, the Church where he was baptized still stands today in Leonding, Austria.

Adolf Hitler's childhood Church in Leonding, Austria, still standing

Adolf Hitler's antisemitism came from his Christianity.

Adolf Hitler's early and personal notes, as well as his private conversations show his interest in religion and Biblical views.

Adolf Hitler Hitler loathed atheism. In his writings and speeches, he admonished atheists. For example:

We were convinced that the people needs and requires this faith.
We have therefore undertaken the fight against the atheistic movement, and that not merely with a few theoretical declarations: we have stamped it out.

-Adolf Hitler, in a speech in Berlin on 24 Oct. 1933

The NSDAP Party platform included a section on Positive Christianity, Adolf Hitler never removed it.

Adolf Hitler confessed his Christianity numerous times.

Adolf Hitler established a Reich German Church.

Adolf Hitler allowed the destruction of Jewish synagogues and temples, but not Christian churches.

Adolf Hitler encouraged NSDAP Members to worship in Christian churches.

Adolf Hitler spoke of his Christian beliefs in his speeches and proclamations. His contemporaries, friends, Protestant ministers and Catholics priests, including the Vatican, thought of Hitler as a Christian.

Most importantly, The Catholic Church never excommunicated Hitler. He died a Catholic.

One of the greatest testaments of Adolf Hitler's Christianity came from General Francisco Franco of Spain, who after Hitler's death stated:

""Adolf Hitler, son of the Catholic Church, died while defending Christianity. It is therefore understandable that words cannot be found to lament over his death, when so many were found to exalt his life. Over his mortal remains stands his victorious moral figure. With the palm of the martyr, God gives Hitler the laurels of victory."----- Francisco Franco.

Contrary to the Big Lie that has been repeated since 1945,

National Socialist Germany was a Christian Nation, so much in fact that the Catholic Church had viewed the Nazis as a barrier to the spread of communism from the Soviet Union and the evil Stalin who had repressed Christianity in Russia, Ukraine and the deeply religious Baltic Republics.

The National Socialist Party program, officially published in February 1920, included a section on Christianity. Point 24 of the 25-point program stated:

We demand freedom for all religious denominations in the State so far as they are not a danger to it and do not militate against the customs and morality of the German Volk. The Party as such stands for Positive Christianity, but does not bind itself in the matter of creed to any particular denomination.

It fights the spirit of Jewish materialism within and outside of our ranks and is convinced our nation can achieve permanent health from within only on the principle: "Common welfare comes before individual welfare."

The statement was carefully crafted, reflecting the general National Socialist principle of non-interference in church matters. While refusing to endorse any particular Christian denomination or doctrinal perspective, it clearly endorsed "Positive Christianity" and religious freedom. Churches in a National Socialist-dominated German state would be free to fulfill their missions, as long as they did not threaten civil order or national security, or advance beliefs and causes that violated historic German ethics and morals. Certainly not all National Socialists shared this view.

Within the NSDAP were two powerful forces. One, represented by men like Alfred Rosenberg, who later became Reichsminister for the Occupied Eastern Regions, wanted to see Germany embrace ancient pagan beliefs. The other, represented by men like Hanns Kerrl, who later became Reichsminister for Church Affairs, endorsed Christianity. But it was Kerrl, not Rosenberg, who was in the majority. In recognition of the party's partnership with churches in its effort to remake Germany, storm troopers were required to attend worship services in their uniforms. Adolf Hitler refused to identify himself with the anti-Christian views of some of his associates, such as Rosenberg. In addition, he frequently made mention of "the Almighty" and "Providence" in his speeches, as well as attacking two of Christianity's opposites: Marxism and atheism.

The fact is that religious life in Germany, under National Socialism was more freely and undisturbed. No form of Godlessness or blasphemy was tolerated and the churches as well as their religious affairs are secure, undisturbed, and free of problems in a way that is unprecedented in history and almost unknown in any other country on earth. In 1935, an article in a National Socialist publication made clear the distinction between what was "political", and what was "religious". "Political" was everything which in the earthly forms of organization, word, picture and demeanor, appears for the benefit of the Folk, even if it has the least meaning. "Religious" was everything which in earthly form is incomprehensible, like belief in heaven and the longing for things which are beyond the visible world.

Because of the NSDAP's commitment to a strict separation of church and state, the National Socialists insisted that churches should play no active part in the political developments of the Reich. As long as the churches confined themselves to religious matters, their freedom was guaranteed.

Interestingly, the decadence of the Weimar Republic (which we see in today's America) and the economic crisis of the Great Depression, (which we see in today's America as well) caused many Germans to abandon the church, especially between 1930 and 1933. When Adolf Hitler and the NSDAP assumed power in 1933, however, this trend was dramatically reversed. National Socialist support for and friendliness toward Christian faith found receptive ears and a hunger in German communities, leading to revival in the churches. The presence of leading National Socialist members at church services and Chancellor Adolf Hitler's attacks on "godless Marxism", "Jewish materialism," and decaying morality, together with the National Socialist government's call for exercise of authority and leadership and call for a renewal of morality, provided clear evidence to average Germans that the National Socialists were pro-Christian - so much so, in fact, that the year 1933 became known as----- "The Year of the Church.

Cologne, 1933

Finally, the allegations that National Socialist Germany was hostile to religion is completely proven false by National Socialist government Policy of funding Churches, something that is not even done in so called Christian Nations.

From January 30, 1933 (the date Adolf Hitler became Chancellor) through 1938 alone, the German National Socialist Government, acting through its Official institutions directly funded German Churches as follows Churches:

Fiscal Year 1933: 130 million RM,
Fiscal Year 1934: 170 million RM,
Fiscal Year 1935: 250 million RM,
Fiscal Year 1936: 320 million RM,
Fiscal Year 1937: 400 million RM,
Fiscal Year 1938: 500 million RM.

In addition to these direct funds were an additional annual 85 million Reichsmarks from Land (i.e. state or provincial, transaction) tax revenues and some 7 million Reichsmarks from the local tax revenues from municipalities and municipal associations.

Also, in National Socialist Germany, Churches were Germany's largest land-owners second only to the state. The value of Churches agricultural and forestry land holdings exceeded 10 billion Reichsmarks. The income from these land holdings was, at that time, estimated at more than 300 million Reichsmarks annually.

Churches in National Socialist Germany were beneficiary of countless donations, testamentary transferences and, most of all, the revenues from Church collections and enjoyed numerous (more than Churches in the U.S. today) tax concessions, and where entirely exempt from taxation.

National Socialist Germany never closed a Christian Church nor obstructed a Christian religious service, nor influenced the form in which a Christian religious service was held. National Socialist Germany never influenced the teachings, or the creed, of any denomination whatsoever. The Allied Occupation most certainly did after 1945 and in so doing purged Christianity from Germany. In fact Christianity in the Third Reich thrived on a scale that exceeds that in today's Germany which is nothing more than a vassal State. In National Socialist Germany, a Organization was formed, "The National Socialist Christian Organization", whose Members even wore their own badges and pins.

In National Socialist Germany everyone was free to find his salvation in whichever way they choose. National Socialist Germany was neither prudish nor dishonest. But did enforce certain moral principles, adherence to which is in the interest of the biological health of a people and which it did not permit to be undercut. Pederasty and crimes against children were punished as criminal offenses in the state, regardless who committed the crimes. When some leading figures in the National Socialist Party committed these crimes, they were executed. When other public or private individuals, or clergymen, committed the same offenses, they were punished with jail or prison terms.

In conclusion,

It does not take much of an educated person to realize that the "Stories" of the "evil Hitler" persecuting Christians have all been Judeo-Marxist Propaganda, designed to enflame the passions and cloud good people's reasons. Jews are much like the domestic abuser who tells their victim they abuse them because they love them, they have done this throughout history. The Poles have an age old proverb that the Jew cries out in pain as he strikes you. The problem within many self described American National Socialist Entities is that they have been hesitant to address this issue, mainly because they themselves do not follow a true and orthodox National Socialist course. The fact is National Socialist Germany was a Christian National, more so than any Nation that calls itself such today. The fact that this Big Lie has been allowed to grow throughout the years lays at the feet of our Movement for we have been silent for all the wrong reasons. For far too long so called National Socialist have failed to confront this issue for fear of alienating some segment of membership or other Nationalist Group, this is cowardice and plays into the hands of fools and foes and ignores the truth.

Let us commit this Holy Week to confront both Fool and Foe and state proudly that we are proud to be BOTH Christian and National Socialist and remind people that National Socialists were the first Christian Soldiers to confront the Evil Empire of Marxist Communism and were and have been the first to confront the Evil Empire of Marxist Jewry.

May God bless you and yours on this Easter and may God bless our eternal National Socialist Cause.
